

"New" Village Hill Cemetery: Numerical Listing by Stone

Genealogical data transcribed from the stones by Eric W. Weber, 2001

When I transcribed the stones in 2001, I was not allowed access to cemetery burial records or to a map showing the layout and numbering of the lots. Consequently I had to devise a simple numbering system of my own for the stones. These numbers have nothing to do with the cemetery's lot numbering system and will mean nothing at all to cemetery officials or employees when mentioned to them. In general, my numbers run from Village Hill Road southwestward along each successive row of stones until the row ends. The first stone in most rows is just inside the fence along Village Hill Road, but some rows begin farther inside the cemetery, so it isn't safe just to count stones uphill along the roadside to determine what row number one is at. Until a real map of the cemetery is available, users of this transcription trying to locate particular stones when no cemetery employee is available to help will have to endure some trial-and-error searching. At least this list should help to narrow the search.

Stones that are listed in gray instead of black are footstones or secondary markers for people whose main monuments have other numbers, usually very close by. Listings in red are ones that need checking or can't be read with confidence. Characters that are underlined in those entries, where they appear, are the characters particularly in doubt.

Since finishing the original transcription, I have added some listings for people buried since 2001 -- but not many, and certainly nowhere near all of them. For people buried since mid-2001, you will need to talk to someone at the cemetery office. At this writing there is no telephone or computer there, and cemetery employees aren't always on site during normal business hours, so contact isn't always easy.
